

What would you like to improve about your time management, and what are some strategies that the video suggested which might be helpful for you?

The students in the video talked about feeling overcommitted, or spreading themselves too thin. Do you ever feel that way? Why? How could you address that?

How do you avoid being "controlled" by technology/social media?

